Description

Merging industrial charm with organic warmth, this square tray showcases the perfect fusion of distressed mirror surfaces and rustic wooden elements. The aged finish of the mirrored panels creates an intriguing depth that catches and reflects light in subtle ways, while the wooden framework provides a grounding contrast that speaks to contemporary design sensibilities. Its versatile proportions make it an ideal centerpiece for coffee tables, vanities, or dining room displays. The weathered patina develops a unique character over time, making each piece distinctly individual. For maximum visual impact, pair this tray with the Luxe Collection Natural Glow LED candles, which cast enchanting reflections across the mirror surface, or arrange it with the Autumn White Hydrangea for a serene botanical display. The antiqued finish coordinates seamlessly with other pieces from the Astor collection, including the larger companion trays for nested arrangements. Consider displaying alongside the Antique Etched foxed Wall Art Mirror to create a cohesive design narrative throughout your space. The combination of materials and thoughtful construction results in a piece that appeals to design-conscious customers seeking statement accessories with both visual interest and practical functionality.
