Description

Artfully sculpted to mimic the organic beauty of fresh harvest, this medium-sized stone apple brings a refined rustic charm to any display arrangement. Its antiqued finish creates subtle depth and character, while the meticulous attention to detail captures the authentic contours and natural form of the fruit. Perfect for creating impactful seasonal displays or year-round decorative statements, this piece works beautifully when grouped with its smaller apple counterpart and coordinating stone pears from the same collection. For an enriched decorative story, consider pairing with our stone ceramic dishes, which provide an ideal base for creating layered displays. The decorative artichoke collection offers complementary organic forms that echo the natural inspiration of this piece, while the stone effect acorn tea light holder introduces a gentle ambient lighting element that enhances the overall aesthetic. This carefully considered piece appeals to stockists seeking distinctive decorative items that resonate with customers who appreciate artisanal quality and understated luxury in their home accessories.
