Description

A distinguished stone effect sculpture that channels the character of European formal gardens and British manor estates into your retail collection. The Tuxedo Hare stands tall with an air of formality, its poised stance and detailed texturing mimicking the appearance of weathered garden statuary. The intricate design showcases textural elements that replicate the look of aged limestone, while maintaining a contemporary feel that resonates with modern decorative trends. The hare's elongated form and formal 'attire' aesthetic creates a whimsical yet dignified presence, making it an ideal statement piece for both indoor and outdoor-inspired spaces. This sculpture pairs exceptionally well with the Stone Effect Ruffle Hare Ornament for a coordinated display, and complements the classical influences found in the Amalfi and Athena chess pieces. For a cohesive decorative story, consider displaying alongside the Fluted Stone Ceramic Urn or the Siena collection of water vessels. The neutral palette and architectural quality of this piece allow it to function as a focal point in entryways, on mantels, or as part of a curated tabletop arrangement. Its scale and presence make it an excellent choice for retailers seeking distinctive decorative elements that combine classical reference points with contemporary appeal.
